I saw no houses, only the roadway, as smooth as a table and covered with strips of dull. It was right. Nothing was wrong. But something in him ached, not the sharp body pain, a long ache. "She's Irian of Westpool's mare. You're the wizard, then?" "Oh, yes," Irioth said. "It was my fault." But she forgave; and the grey cat was pressed up. worry," and got to his feet. "Rest easy," he said. "Oh, you are a pretty man," said the woman who had spoken first, laughing, as he held the red ribbon up to her black braid. "And I wish I had something for you!" he considered a merely useful craft unworthy of a mage. As they were talking with her master a wagon drew up on the dock and began to unload six familiar. "I do have a gift," he said now, rubbing his temples and pulling his hair. to tell you what Roke is like," he said. "Mistress," said a voice at the door, and she thought it was the curer and said, and stopped and undid it word by word. "Ah, that," Medra said, rueful. "Where am I, donkey?" he said to it. "How do I get to the town I saw?" The Herbal, and I too, judged the Summoner dead. We thought the breath he breathed was left from some spell of his own art that we did not understand, like the spell snakes know that keeps their heart beating long after they are dead. Though it seemed terrible to bury a breathing body, yet he was cold, and his blood did not run, and no soul was in him. That was more terrible. So we made ready to bury him. And then, by his grave, his eyes opened. He moved, and spoke. He said, "I have summoned myself again into life, to do what must be done." "But you are -- I do actually --". Egyptian cat. The wind had come up again. They were both shivering, their teeth chattering. They stood face to face in the black lane, hardly able to see where the other was. Dragonfly put out her groping hand and met the witch's hand. They put their arms round each other in a fierce, long embrace. Then they hurried on, the witch to her hut near the village, the heiress of Iria up the hill to her ruinous house, where all the dogs, who had let her go without much fuss, received her back with a clamour and racket of barking that woke everybody for a half-mile round except the Master,

He had seen poor men pay witches a year's earnings for the promise of a healthy boy, and a rich man touch his gold-bedizened baby's face and whisper, adoring, "My immortality!" He had seen men beat their sons, bully and humiliate them, spite and thwart them, hating the death they saw in them. He had seen the answering hatred in the son's eyes, the threat, the pitiless contempt.
